2 Major Bills Provide Key to End of Session

Adjournment Depends on Neutrality and Spending FIGHT LIKELY

President Is Expected to Make Views Known
This Week

Washington—(AP)—The administration's neutrality and spending programs held the key today to congressional adjournment, with every indication of fresh rebellions over both issues.

Most legislators were out of the capital over the Independence day recess, but those still at their desks predicted President Roosevelt would tell his lieutenants this week whether they should try to force through those two controversial measures or let the session end in mid-July.

Leaders were reconsidering their strategy in view of the house refusal to repeal the existing arms embargo and the Republican speech-making coup in the senate which prevented immediate extension of the president's monetary powers. The senate will vote Wednesday on the monetary bill.

Most anti-administration senators contended it would be futile for their chamber to take up the neutrality question. The house bill, re-written to retain most of the president's emergency provisions, aroused far greater opposition than leaders had expected.

Lending Plan Delayed
Legislation to provide for the president's $3,800,000,000 lending program probably will not be ready for another week, but Republicans already have indicated they will fight its enactment as strongly as they opposed continuation of his power to devalue the dollar.

Although adjournment-minded legislators were interested primarily in learning what the administration wanted to do next, leaders in the senate centered their efforts on obtaining approval of the monetary legislation.

The president's dollar devaluation power and the treasury's authority to maintain the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund expired last Friday midnight but Attorney General Murphy has said they will go into force automatically when, and if, the measure continuing them is enacted.

Republicans who joined with senate liberals in the original opposition to the bill hoped they could kill it finally Wednesday. By talking through the Friday midnight deadline they had held up a vote over the bill.

Hopes For Enactment
Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.), floor manager for the bill, told reporters he was not sure of a majority but that chances were better than 50-50 for enacting the legislation.

The legislation as approved by a joint senate-house committee last Thursday would retain the dollar devaluation power, permit foreign silver purchases, and fix the price of domestically-mined silver at 71.1 cents an ounce.

In the event that the senate decides to take up the neutrality question, the entire subject of American foreign policy will be thrust out in extensive debate. A sizable bi-partisan bloc has organized to oppose any change in the present neutrality law, which forbids sale of arms to belligerents whenever the president finds a state of war exists.

If the legislation is laid aside, the general opinion on capital hill is that the session may end in two or three weeks.

Congress began its seventh month today.

Badger Sophomore Dies
When Residence Burns
Grand Rapids, Mich.—(AP)—John Walters, 18, university of Wisconsin sophomore working in an oil field near here during the summer, was burned fatally yesterday when a residence was destroyed in suburban Wyoming park. His mother, Mrs. Lucille Walters, lives in Madison, Wis.

Broke Arm 6 Times, Boy Boasts
Jack D. Vane, 10, of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., cut up a newspaper to ask for a correction in a story saying he broke his arm for the fifth time when he fell out of a tree. "It was the sixth time," he said. Good for Jackie. It makes a big difference and the paper should apologize. One could well boast about the results of the ad below... but they are only customary to users of the Post-Crescent Want Ad columns:

Hope to Triple Army Air Corps Within 2 Years

Officials See Mass Production as Means for 6,000 Planes

Washington—(AP)—Economies through mass production have raised the hopes of some army officials for an air corps of 6,000 planes within two years.

Congress authorized such a trebled force as a maximum in the $300,000,000 air corps expansion now in full swing but the funds it made available officially were estimated to be sufficient for only 5,500.

Whether the $100,000,000 additional aircraft can be acquired with available money was expected to be determined when bids were opened this week for construction of more than 2,500 planes of 10 types.

Record Orders
The contracts to follow, possibly by the end of the month, will represent by far the largest orders the aviation industry ever has received.

On the basis of recent orders, the costs will range upwards from $5,000 or $10,000 for training planes to $250,000 for the heavy bombers such as the present 17-ton "flying fortresses."

Training of men to fly and service the new craft started Saturday at nine scattered civilian schools where primary instruction is to be given to 396 cadets. They will be transferred to Randolph and Kelly fields, Texas, for advanced training.

Some 2,134 additional fliers and about 18,000 mechanics and other specialists must be training within the next two years.

To supply recruits to the air corps and other army branches, an enlistment campaign already has been started to sign up 112,500 men from 18 to 35 years old within the next 12 months.

Three Sisters Die in Tragedy

Skiff Sinks in Rain-Swollen
River: Victims
Unable to Swim

West Newton, Pa.—(AP)—Linked arm in arm, three young sisters who couldn't swim leaped from a sinking skiff and drowned in the treacherous, rain-swollen Youngs-boghen river Sunday.

A companion, 20-year-old Margaret Skirland, swept toward shore by the turbulent current, grasped by a branch of an overhanging tree and pulled herself to safety. Then, half-exhausted, she stumbled and ran to this western Pennsylvania community to gasp out news of the tragedy.

Under the glare of powerful searchlights firemen equipped with long grappling hooks dragged the muddy waters throughout the night without finding trace of the pretty victims. Eleonore Mirella, 18, Ann, 20, and Louise, 22, of nearby Collinsburg.

The girls had borrowed the boat from a neighbor for an outing. As it neared midstream in the 200-yard wide river, the current caught it, whirled and rocked it.

Waves began to slap over the sides. Frightened, the girls grabbed but their cries went unnoticed. They stopped rowing, cupped their hands and desperately tried to bail out the water. As the boat began to go down, the Mirella girls joined hands and jumped. Margaret followed.

3 Trainmen Killed When Freight Hits Boulder in Kentucky

Mt. Vernon, Ky.—(AP)—Three trainmen were killed early today when a heavily-loaded freight train plowed into an immense boulder that toppled from a mountainside, overturning the locomotive and three cars.

Louisville and Nashville railroad offices at Latonia listed the dead as:

E. J. Weaver, engineer; William Goebel, fireman, and S. C. Long, brakeman, all of Covington, Ky. M. C. Miller, chief clerk, said the rock was 75 feet long, 35 feet high and 15 feet thick. It blocked both tracks of the line and traffic probably will be obstructed for at least 20 hours, he said.

The wreck occurred at 1:30 a. m. (C. S. T.) as the train, northbound from Corbin, approached the village of Sinks, seven miles southeast of here.

Wreckage of Plane Is Found in Philippines

Manila—(AP)—Airplane wreckage, near which lay human skulls and bones, was identified by constabularymen today as the plane of Jackson Mercer, commercial pilot, who disappeared April 8 with two companions.

A forest guard found the wreckage at the heavily wooded foot of high Mount Marapara near the town of Victoria, Negros island.

DROWNS IN FUTILE RESCUE ATTEMPT

Choking back her grief, Mrs. Edith Pfeiffer (center) is shown watching in sorrow unsuccessful efforts of rescuers to revive her drowned husband, Louis, at East Rutherford, N. J. The couple had seen Sophie Kostoplas, 12, fall into a rain-swollen sewer. Pfeiffer plunged in after her and was swept away. In all, four persons were drowned in the sewer.

20,000 Attend Opening Day of Celebration to Enjoy Speech, Fireworks, Free Acts, Midway

Thousands of persons gathered at Pierce park Sunday afternoon and evening as Appleton opened its 3-day Fourth of July celebration.

An address by Joseph McCarthy, Shawano, circuit judge-elect, free acts, midway attractions and a half hour program of fireworks brought to the park a crowd estimated by officials as close to 20,000, the largest ever to attend the Jaces' annual festivities.

A feature of the celebration will be a complete squadron drill by Appleton's champion Sons of the American Legion at 7 o'clock tonight on the midway. There will be a complete change of free acts today, featuring an aerial trapeze. The show will be presented at 2 o'clock this afternoon and again at 8 o'clock tonight.

There are over 40 concessions on the grounds, the glass blowing exhibition proving one of the most popular yesterday.

The 3-day celebration will reach its climax Tuesday. On the special program planned for that day are an Independence day address by Congressman Joshua Johns, recitation of the declaration of Independence by Milburn Rietz, Appleton High school oratorical champion, and the presentation of a hero's award by Fred Boughton to Robert Dorschner, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dorschner, Hawes avenue, who rescued a small playmate from drowning.

A special daylight fireworks display for children will be presented at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. An evening display will begin promptly at 9 o'clock, as it did last night.

In spite of the heavy traffic, the parking problem was handled ably by the Appleton police department. No cars were permitted inside the park.

The loud speaking system, used by the speakers and by the master of ceremonies to announce the various vaudeville acts, was useful in restoring lost children to their parents.

McCarthy Scores War Propaganda In Talk at Park

Let Other Nations Solve Their Own Problems, Judge-Elect Says

That American citizens, while loyal to their ideals of liberty, will be wise enough to let foreign nations settle their own problems, was the plea of Joseph McCarthy, circuit judge-elect, in an Independence day speech Sunday afternoon at Pierce park.

Denouncing the war propaganda, which, he said, is designed to prepare the people of the United States for "another futile slaughter," the youthful judge-elect warned against both the selfish and the well-meaning groups who have agitated for the use of this country's army and navy to liberate unfortunate peoples abroad.

"We would like to see all the peoples of the world enjoying the liberty and freedom that we have," he acknowledged. "But it is written indelibly in history that when an autocracy is removed by powers other than the people themselves, that autocracy will be replaced by an autocracy even more vicious."

"Democracy has never been bestowed upon a people by an outside paternal hand. It is only when their liberty is purchased by their own hands," he said.

President of Bank Called Embezzler

F.B.I. Officer Says Michigan Man Confessed Taking $126,000

Detroit—(AP)—John S. Burgess, head of the Detroit office of the federal bureau of investigation, announced that Walter P. Jacobs, 42, who resigned Saturday as president of the National bank of Adrian, Mich., confessed embezzling $126,000 of the bank's funds.

Burgess said Jacobs signed a confession after he was arrested on a warrant charging that he made a false entry of $100,000 in the Adrian bank ledger. Jacobs was lodged in the Wayne county jail here to await arraignment before U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd.

Jacobs, who held executive positions in Chicago and Detroit banks before he went to Adrian in 1933 to head the newly-organized bank, was arrested a few hours after he submitted his resignation to the bank's board of directors.

Madison—(AP)—A transient who identified himself as Andrew Gates, 31, attempted suicide in a police station cell last night after his arrest on charges of looting residences of summer school students in the university section.

The man was found hanging by a belt which he borrowed from another prisoner. He was taken to Madison General hospital where his condition was reported critical.

WISCONSIN DEATHS

Milwaukee—(AP)—Only two traffic deaths were reported in Wisconsin as highway travel climbed above normal because of the Fourth of July holidays—a four-day vacation for many.

The victims were Anton Metz, 20, of Milwaukee, and George Lapp, 40, of Merrill.

Metz died Sunday from injuries received when he was driven by Andrew Gayer, 23, in which he was riding, plunged into a ditch and struck an electric light pole. The pole snapped and a 200-pound transformer crashed through the car roof. Gayer and two others in the car were injured. It was the first traffic fatality in Milwaukee county outside the city of Milwaukee since Jan. 1.

Lapp died Saturday after his car and a truck collided at an intersection near Wausau. Three others were hurt.

Iron Mountain, Mich.—(AP)—Four hundred persons joined Sheriff Edward Rietz yesterday in searching for the body of Mrs. Bruno Romonoff after she reportedly jumped or fell from the old United States Highway 2 bridge into the Menominee river near the twin Falls dam. Her husband died May 25. There is one son, Henry, 14.

Hermann, Chicago Theater Operator, Succumbs After Crash

Sturgeon Bay—(AP)—U. J. "Sport" Hermann, Chicago theater operator and yachtsman, died in a hospital here last night of injuries suffered in an automobile accident south of Sturgeon Bay about midnight Friday.

Coroner Calmer Nelson of Door county said Hermann was on his way to Sturgeon Bay, where he keeps his yacht, from Chicago when his automobile collided at a curve in the road with one driven by Gordon Jackson, of Sturgeon Bay. The coroner said he would swear in a jury today to hold an inquest later in the week.

Jackson and three occupants of his automobile suffered bruises and cuts, the coroner said, but were not injured critically.

The accident was on Highway 57 about ten miles south of Sturgeon Bay.

Former University President Is Facing Return by Airplane To Face Embezzlement Charges

Baton Rouge, La.—(AP)—Louisiana awaited today the return of Dr. James Monroe Smith as a prisoner facing embezzlement charges in the same red plane in which, before his resignation as president of Louisiana State university, he was wont to hop about the country.

The Louisiana State university airplane, often used by athletic department officials on scouting and recruiting trips for the football team, took off yesterday with two officers aboard for Brockville, Ontario, to extradite Dr. Smith, who was taken into custody there with Mrs. Smith late Saturday night.

The plane left near yesterday with Murphy Roden, assistant superintendent of state police, and Bryan Clemmons, special investigator of the district attorney's office, piloted by Lieutenant J. P. Fraim, head of the university's aeronautical department.

The party stopped at Natchitoches, La., where Governor Earl K. Long, inaugurated to succeed Rich-

Chamberlain Says 'Military' Moves Made in Free City

Japanese Report
Gain in Battle on Mongolian Border

Claim Capture of Strong Soviet-Outer Mongolian Position

Hsinking, Manchoukuo—(AP)—Japanese army communiques reported today the capture of a strongly-fortified Soviet-Outer Mongolian position atop a strategic hill along the Khalka river after a heavy battle on the Manchoukuo-Mongolia frontier.

Reports from the Kwantung army, Japan's Manchoukuo garrison said the attackers battled to the summit of the hill in the face of raking machine-gun fire and then locked in hand-to-hand fighting until the position was cleared.

They said airplanes were active on both sides, both for bombing and reconnoitering.

The Japanese reported they opened the attack at dawn with a bombardment of enemy positions across the river in which, they said, they destroyed an undisclosed number of tanks and about 10 trucks and wagons.

They said they captured 300 tanks when their infantry encountered a Mongolian corps of 100.

The report of the offensive along the Khalka river southeast of Lake Bor, in a region where sporadic frontier warfare between Outer Mongolia and Manchoukuo has been waged since May 11, was the first to disclose infantry fighting.

Previous Japanese dispatches had reported clashes between motorized land forces and both sides had reported air battles.

Treasury Fund Still Is Active

Officials Watch World Markets to Protect Dollar Value

Washington—(AP)—Some parliamentarians believe that the powers of the treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund died Friday midnight, but the clatter of the fund's tickers was the only sound of life in the department today.

A curious reporter, who had to work on this government employee holiday, surprised fund officials who thought they were alone and had left open their unusually tightly-closed doors.

His word of greeting brought a swift shutting of doors, closing off the view but not muffling much the ceaseless banging of the machines which keep officials in touch with money markets of the world.

Throughout the world, international money traders were buying and selling dollars, pounds, francs and other currencies. So fund officials watched the markets for any serious changes in the value of the dollar in terms of the other currencies and stood ready to buy or sell a few million dollars or ounces of gold.

Later, a treasury spokesman said the legality of the fund's operations today was being safeguarded by doing business in the name of the secretary of the treasury, rather than in the fund's own name.

Secretary Morgenthau, himself, was resting from the week-end strain by vacationing at his farm near Fishkill, N. Y.

Fails in Attempt to Drown Two Children And Himself in Lake

Chicago—(AP)—Edward M. Dresden, 36, who police Lieutenant John Quinn said attempted to drown his two young children and himself in Lake Michigan last night, was held in the psychopathic hospital today for observation.

Lieutenant Quinn said witnesses told him that Dresden, unemployed, buried his son Eugene, 7, into 10 feet of water at the foot of Belmont street at dusk. Then picking up his daughter, Patricia, 2, Dresden plunged into the lake and with one hand started to swim away from the shore.

Swimming nearby was Mrs. Yolanda Wabbi, mother of two children. Aided by an unidentified man she pulled Eugene from the water and plunged after Dresden and Patricia. Twenty feet from shore she reached the pair, and after a frantic struggle, tore the child from the father's arms.

Back to shore she swam with Patricia and then plunged into the water again to rescue Dresden, whom she towed to shore despite his struggles. A half-dozen men pulled him to safety.

Dresden's wife, Margaret, told police he had been despondent because of unemployment.

30 Trucking Firms Sign Contracts With Union

Milwaukee—(AP)—Edward Young, president of the Milwaukee trucking exchange, said today 30 Milwaukee trucking companies had signed contracts covering working conditions with representatives of the Truck Drivers' union (A. F. of L.). The agreement, affecting about 350 workers, provides for a closed shop and one week's vacation with pay.

Hunt Fragments of Meteorites After Explosion in Oregon

Portland, Ore.—(AP)—Portland, jolted and terrified by an apparent exploding meteor joined science in a search for fragments of the celestial visitor today.

The Portland area and southwestern Washington were rocked at 7:00 a. m., yesterday by the mammoth explosion and blinded by flames flashing from the sky. Reports of the blast came in from as far away as Arlington, 125 miles up the Columbia river.

J. Hugh Pruett, University of Oregon astronomer and Oregon representative of the American Meteorological association, sifted reports of the object's trajectory as hundreds of amateurs took to the field in efforts to find meteorite-fragments of the heavenly body.

Pruett said it probably would be two weeks before he could determine just where the explosion occurred.

Portland residents, however, will swear it was right over the city. A stone wall was toppled, windows were broken, a store wall cracked and a rural mail box knocked loose from its post by the force of the blast.

Seven are Injured, One Seriously, in Traffic Accidents

Oshkosh Girl Suffers Skull Fracture When Car Leaves Road

Seven persons were injured, one seriously, in traffic accidents in Outagamie county and vicinity over the weekend.

Miss Janice Gauger, 19, 84 W. Lincoln street, Oshkosh, suffered a skull fracture, crushed chest and scalp lacerations when a car driven by Harold Heling, Oshkosh, went into a ditch on County Trunk A, a mile south of Neenah Sunday.

Winnebago county police reported that the car failed to negotiate a curve.

Miss Gen Rushlow, 19, 421 Third street, Neenah, and Victor Sturm, 24, 420 Third street, Menasha, were injured when car driven by J. Cleveland, route 1, Menasha, and Victor Stern, 696 Tayco street, Menasha, collided on Highway 114 in the town of Menasha at 12:30 Sunday morning.

Both machines were traveling west at the time. Miss Rushlow received lacerations of the face and a broken bone in her left foot. She was an occupant of the Stern car. Sturm, an occupant of the Cleveland machine, received minor cuts and bruises.

Arthur Strong, 700 S. Commercial street, Neenah, was injured when his car went out of control on a gravelled sidewalk off Highway 114 near Menasha about 5:15 Sunday afternoon and rolled over into a ditch full of water after hitting the railing of a culvert.

The Strong car stopped upside down but Strong and Carl Gutshaw, 232 Prospect street, Menasha, managed to crawl out through open windows. Only the wheels of the machine were protruding above the water.

Richard, 9, and Barbara, 7, children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ingenthron, 1728 N. Clark street, suffered minor lacerations when a car driven by their father and a P. Rock, Little Chute, collided on Wisconsin avenue about 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Ingenthron was going east and was making a left turn into a driveway when Rock began to pass the machine and the collision occurred, it was reported to police.

Leon Gielow, 19, Sugarbush, was bruised about the head and face when his car failed to make a turn on County Trunk W and hit a large rock early this morning. Gielow was going west on County Trunk W and failed to make the turn at County Trunk D near the Clover Blossom school in the town of Maple Creek. His machine was badly damaged.

Police today were checking on an accident in which cars driven by William Van Norwick, 239 N. Union street, and Victor Frank, 23, 225 W. Wisconsin avenue, were damaged on E. Water street at 5:20 yesterday afternoon. No one was injured.

Official circles in London expected Britain to go further and tell Germany directly this week that any Nazi attempt to annex Danzig, including a Nazi putsch within the free city, would be resisted by force.

French political circles suggested that France, Britain and Poland make a direct appeal to the Danzig senate against any move by it to join Germany.

In Danzig itself the Nazi-controlled senate issued a decree to draft workers for labor "vital to the state" in event of an emergency, and in Danzig political circles there was a new note of nervousness over the uncertainty of the immediate future.

Before his appearance in the house, Chamberlain had conferred an hour with King George VI in Buckingham palace at a time when he was said to be "seriously considering" reinforcing his cabinet by the addition of Winston Churchill.

Chamberlain in a brief broadcast on civil defense yesterday gave Germany another blunt warning.

"Let no one suppose," he said, "we are not ready to throw our whole strength into the scale, if need be, to resist aggression" against Britain or states whose independence she has guaranteed.

Kermit J. Watney, 21, the son, was the first of two fatalities of the accident, which occurred in a field six miles from Gordonville, 15 miles south of here. Clarence Weber, about 22, of London township, was taken from the wreckage alive but died en route to a hospital.

The pilot of the three-seater plane, Irving Engen, about 27, of Glenview, Minn., is in a hospital here with two broken legs and internal injuries. His condition was described as critical.

First Public Mention Of Reports by British Minister

KEEPING WATCH
Claims Many German Nationals Arrived Recently at Danzig

London—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain informed the house of commons today the British government had received reliable reports that "intensive measures of a military character" were taking place in Danzig.

His statement marked the first time a British cabinet minister had mentioned publicly reports of Danzig activity.

In response to a question, the prime minister said, the intensive measures of a military character are being carried out in the free city.

"Reliable reports indicate that intensive measures of a military character are being carried out in the free city."

"A large and increasing number of German nationals have recently arrived in the free city, ostensibly as tourists, and a local defense corps is being formed under the name of 'heimwehr'."

"The government are maintaining contact with the Polish and French governments regarding developments in Danzig."

"Precautionary" Action
(In Danzig, officials acknowledged Saturday that "precautionary measures" had been taken and black-uniformed Danzig S. S. men were in complete charge of one hill and had partial control of another.

(The police force had been augmented and men appeared wearing on their sleeves light bands with the legend "heimwehr," which official quarters said indicated they were Danzig S. S. men who had volunteered for police service. Danzig officials insisted not a single German "with or without a uniform" was on duty in the free city.)

(An associated Press dispatch from the free city today said there were no signs of new developments of a military nature.)

Hitter Warned
Laborite Frederick Cocks then asked whether the government proposed "to take steps to inform Herr Hitler personally that any attempt to change the status of Danzig by force will be instantly resisted by the British government."

(An associated Press dispatch from the free city today said there were no signs of new developments of a military nature.)

Trinity Church Pastor Submits His Resignation

Rev. D. E. Bosserman
Will Accept Pastorate
In Chicago

The Rev. D. E. Bosserman, pastor of Trinity English Lutheran church for the last 9 years, tendered his resignation to the congregation at the morning service Sunday, to become effective Sept. 1. He will accept the pastorate of Augsburg Lutheran church, Wabash and Seventy-third street, Chicago.

The Rev. Mr. Bosserman came to Appleton in December, 1929, from St. Paul, Minn., where he had been pastor of a church for 13 years. During his pastorate there his congregation built a $100,000 church to replace the building where it had formerly met which was destroyed by fire in 1927.

A graduate of Wittenberg college, Springfield, Ohio, the Rev. Mr. Bosserman took his theological work at Lutheran Theological seminary, Chicago. He and his family will leave Appleton late in August, his final sermon in the local church to be Aug. 27. The Bossermans have one son, Elmer, who was graduated this year from Lawrence college, and two daughters, Irene, a teacher at Appleton High school, and Helen.

GETS NEW POST

After having served Trinity English Lutheran church as pastor for the last 9 years, the Rev. D. E. Bosserman, above, yesterday resigned to accept a pastorate in Chicago. He will take over his new duties at Augsburg Lutheran church, Wabash and Seventy-third street, on Sept. 1.

Roosevelt Takes It Easy Over 4th

Secludes Self at Hyde
Park to Relax, Visit
With His Mother

Hyde Park, N. Y., (AP)—In the seclusion of his family home, President Roosevelt denied himself to callers today as his time would be free for relaxation, a cursory study of communications from Washington, and visiting with his mother.

The president arrived yesterday from Washington to spend three days with his mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, before she leaves for Europe Thursday.

He spent a quiet sabbath, although it was announced he had signed a bill completing his emergency defense program. The measure appropriates $223,398,047 and authorizes contracts up to $70,497,500, mainly for war department purchases of nearly 2,500 air corps and national guard planes.

It also allows expenditure of $14,250,000 for educational orders, to acquaint industry with the processes of munitions manufacture, and $27,000,000 to build up the Panama canal garrison.

Money also is included to begin work on five new air bases and two air depots. The bases will be in the canal zone, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the northeastern and southeastern states, and the depots in the southeastern area and in Utah.

blood and courage that people are willing to fight to preserve that liberty.

The United States should not look upon itself as the savior and guardian of the liberties of the peoples of Europe, although a well-organized minority is attempting to create such an opinion, he declared. While a vast majority of the people of the world abhor war and realize that the people of other nations must work out their own problems, propaganda has nevertheless made serious inroads during the last years, McCarthy said.

"A year from today we will gather again in groups all over the country to renew our pledges of loyalty to those who fought and died for our independence some 160 years ago," he concluded. "Let us hope that we shall be able to say that we have held high the torch for which they fought and died, that we have made even more effective strides toward a stronger and healthier nation and, above all, that we shall have forever effectively stemmed the damnable flow of war propaganda."

Judge-elect McCarthy's address was a feature of the opening day program in the Jacob's 3-day Fourth of July celebration at Pierce park.

Theft of Hitching Post Provides Deep Mystery at Chilton

Chilton — Helmut F. Arps, local attorney and former county judge, this week is attempting to find the motive of thieves that stole an old hitching post from in front of his building last week.

His office is in the old State Bank building which he purchased two years ago. Two decorative hitching posts, embedded in concrete, went with the purchase. Last week one of them disappeared. It would have taken two men to carry away the post, Arps said.

New School Fund Reaches $366,000

Marquette's New Engineering to be Started Soon

A total of $366,573 has been secured in the campaign for funds for the construction of Marquette university's new College of Engineering building at Milwaukee.

Art Goebel, Famous Aviator, Recalls His Experiences on Visit With Waupaca Friends

Waupaca — Arthur Goebel, Los Angeles, internationally known aviator, and friend of Will Rogers and Wiley Post, is a guest this weekend of Colonel and Mrs. L. W. Johnson, Waupaca's expert marksmen.

Goebel, who has been flying for 20 years, first came to attention of the world's public when he won the hazardous trans-oceanic airplane race between Honolulu and San Francisco. The distance of 2,467 miles was covered in 26 hours and 17 minutes. The prize of $25,000 which Goebel won was set up by Jim Dole, then pineapple king.

Goebel relates that when the planes lined up for the race there were nine on the starting line; two got across, two cracked up on the runway; three were lost at sea, with seven lives; one turned back and landed and one was disqualified for lack of sufficient fuel.

In 1928, the year following the Hawaiian race, Goebel went to Japan on the good will tour. Returning, he used the first powered Lockheed plane in the first non-stop flight across the American continent from Los Angeles to New York city. That flight of 2,500 miles was covered in 18 hours and 38 minutes, setting a record. The return from New York set another non-stop record was set when he flew from Los Angeles to Cincinnati. This record still stands.

Won Race in 1929
In 1929 Goebel won the international race from Mexico City to Kansas City. He was the only American pilot in the race.

During 1930 and 1931 Goebel spent his time flying over the country demonstrating aeronautical and radial diesel engines for airplanes, doing stunt flying and exhibition work.

Goebel spent several months sailing up and down the west coast and then in putting in some time on the United States submarine Argonaut.

In 1933 the flier went back into the advertising department of the Philip Petroleum company, sky-riding over 22 states. His sky-riding included participation in the Easter sunrise services in the Wichita mountains in Lawton, Okla. Here he went up before dawn light into the sky and as dawn broke his plane became visible to the crowds below, then with the smoke turned on he wrote in huge letters across the sky "Christ Arose" and "Peace on Earth."

With 1927 the banner year for transoceanic flying, Goebel and others interested in aviation, were invited guest of President Calvin Coolidge at the White House. Here he became acquainted with Charles Lindbergh, Roger Q. Williams, Ruth Elder, Bert Walchen, Admiral Richard Byrd and others whose friendships he still cherishes. Amelia Earhart also was a guest at the White House at that time, but her acquaintanceship with Goebel had been for 20 years.

For Goebel the proverbial latch string always was out at the Beverly Hills home of Will Rogers. He tells that Rogers drew a hole in the back of a gate post and here he hid the key. After Rogers carefully explained the location of the key Goebel said: "I guess I'll be able to find it all right." Rogers answered: "Oh yes, all my enemies find it but my friends never do."

Although the men spent much time together at the ranch and in the movie studios, Rogers never flew with Goebel. This was due to the fact that Goebel never had his passenger flying equipment with him when at the Rogers home.

The ship that flew the Pacific now rests in a museum—a huge stone structure built for that purpose by Colonel Frank Phillips who sponsored the Honolulu flight. It is on his ranch "Woodlark" (for the woods, lakes and rocks) in Bartlesville, Okla. The several thousand acres are fenced to hold within its boundaries more than 200 head of buffalo, as many zebras, Brahman cattle, the regular American as well as white deer, elk and camels. Here Goebel goes every fall to participate in the barbecues and to add to the festivities with a "wild" aerobically show. When Rogers was living he was usually among the guests of Colonel Phillips.

Ranch in Texas
Not only is Goebel interested in flying but in fishing and hunting. On his recently purchased cattle ranch in Llano, Texas, he has built one lake and is completing another, stocking it with croppies, bass, catfish, etc. Two miles of river fishing is on the ranch—and of course an airport is in process of construction.

Mr. Goebel's early life was spent in Colorado although he was born in New Mexico. He received his education in St. Benedict's college, Pueblo, Colo. His mother makes his home in Los Angeles with Goebel who is an only child.

The plane Mr. Goebel is now flying is a Boling P 12, "Pursuit." Built on the military type, it is the only privately owned plane of its kind. A single seater with smoke writing equipment, it should be impossible to build in it a cockpit for passengers.

A natural roamer, Goebel spent last year traveling in Palestine, Egypt, Syria, Greece, Isle of Capri, France and Italy. In Palestine he used an armored car and during the bombing raid in Haifa was accorded armed British escorts. He also spent some time with the headwaters of the Amazon river. Already this year he has covered 26,000 miles outside the United States. Much of this time was spent in Africa—almost encircling that continent. Always interested in big game, he has added the photography, both movies and stills, of wild game to his hobbies. During the past week he made reservation for the 1940 production of the Passion Play in Oberammergau.

Mutually interested in the outdoors, the Johnsons and Mr. Goebel enjoy a warm friendship.

Resign Yourself To Rain Tuesday

Weatherman Forecasts
Thundershowers for Fourth of July

The thermometer was a boiling merrily upward in Appleton this morning, reading 85 degrees at 10:30, but the weatherman threw a cloud over today's pleasant atmosphere by announcing bluntly there will be rain on July Fourth.

Occasional local thundershowers are forecast throughout most of the state, including the Appleton area, by the Milwaukee bureau. It is possible, of course, that any showers that fall in the city and vicinity will be brief and light; and that the sun might still dominate tomorrow's Independence day setting.

That's only a possibility though as is almost anything that might be said ahead of time about weather.

For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 84, registered at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the lowest 68, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power company charts.

It was reported from Chicago this morning that small craft warnings have been hoisted on lakes Michigan and Superior, keeping holiday sailors close to shore.

Ask Youth Congress To Include Communism In Denouncing 'Isms'

New York (AP)—The American youth congress today considered a demand from 55 New York state legislators that the congress express itself as opposed to communism as well as fascism and nazism.

The 1,100 convention delegates postponed a vote yesterday on a resolution denouncing communism and referred the resolution to the resolutions committee. It was expected to be reported back to the full convention later.

The statement by the legislators, signed also by Michael Walsh, New York secretary of state, said the congress had condemned fascism at its past four national conventions, "but never has a word been said against the cancerous menace of atheistic, materialistic communism."

"No movement or organization collaborating with or under the control of the communist forces may be said to be working for American democracy," it asserted.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will address the congress tonight.

Greek-Americans Open Parley at Milwaukee

Milwaukee (AP)—The week-long tenth national convention of the Greek-American Progressive association opened yesterday with a colorful parade in which more than 1,000 persons took part.

Dr. G. P. Gavaris of Chicago, supreme president of the association, declared in a banquet address that by being the best possible citizens of the United States, Greek-Americans would be the "road successors" of the ancient Greek fathers of democracy.

The buyword of a Nation

"SEARS" used to be just the name of a small-town railroad station agent up in Minnesota.

Today it's the buy word of the nation.

Such is the power of an idea.

Richard W. Sears had a sixth sense. Instinctively he sensed the possibilities of mass manufacture and mass distribution—much as Franklin must have sensed the possibilities of electricity when he drew the lightning down from the sky with a kite string—or Watt must have foreseen the future of steam when his tea-kettle lid whistled.

He knew that mass operation meant tearing down the fence between the "haves" and the "have-nots", and throwing the good things of life open to all.

Mixed with his vision was faith. He knew that, if he gave the people better goods for less money, they wouldn't let him down.

Nor was the unspoken covenant of faith one-sided—to make the thing work, the public had to believe in Sears, just as devoutly as Sears believed in the public.

Fifty-three years have rolled by since Dick Sears sold that first watch.

It was a good watch. It kept good time. And it cost far less than any equally good watch had ever cost.

Since then America has been setting its watch by Sears promise to give more and charge less.

And because that promise has never been violated, "Sears" has come to be

—the buy word of a nation

Colored Nine to Show at Kaukauna

Piney Woods Collegians
Will Meet Mellow
Brews Thursday

Kaukauna—Stars of the colored baseball world will shine here Thursday evening under the lights as the Mellow Brews clash with the Piney Woods Collegians, a crack nine which annually averages more than 100 victories. The contest will begin at 8:15.

The visitors not only excel at pure baseball but work in comical angles, with Pee Wee Dunn at first base outstanding. When it comes to consistent slugging the Collegians boast a centerfielder by the name of Popeye, who in 155 contests has swatted the apple for an average of .420.

The Collegian carry a pitching corps of four hurlers, Keyes, Hollingsworth, Thompson and Wallace. Thompson's fast ball is said to be the equal of most big leaguers. Behind the bat is Bass, playing his third season with the Collegians, a timely hitter and possessor of a throwing arm not often seen.

With no league contest slated for Sunday, Manager Joey Vills probably will start his ace hurler, Eddie Schuler, against the colored nine. New London was supposed to show here Sunday but the team has disbanded. Marvin Schuler and Bob Gresenz are likely to take over for several innings apiece.

Report Heavier Boat Traffic at Kaukauna

Kaukauna—Boat traffic through Kaukauna in June showed a gain over the same period in 1938, 163 passages to 139, according to Elmer Johnson, chief bridge tender. It is expected that both the Cook and Brown company and Fox River Navigation company's boats will begin running 24 hours a day this month. High water last year was responsible for the reduced traffic, Johnson said.

BOTH CHILDREN, ADULTS ENJOY OPENING OF PIERCE PARK CELEBRATION

A big, spirited crowd of youngsters and older folks from Appleton and vicinity took over Pierce park yesterday afternoon and evening as the Junior Chamber of Commerce opened its annual Fourth of July celebration.

The speaker was Joseph McCarthy, Shawano, circuit judge-elect, shown above. There were free acts to keep the crowd entertained and rides and concessions to keep things lively.

In the upper right are two young ladies buying balloons from a youthful "hawker." The boy is Paul Hecht, 1320 N. Durkee, and his attractive customers, Virginia Hooyman, (left) 119 S. Locust street, and Rita Tillman 614 E. Franklin street.

At the lower right is a group of older folks watching young "jitters" whisk around the park pavilion dance floor. Is it possible to detect, from studying their expressions, that perhaps they are thinking, "What a change from the days of the nice, dignified waltz?"

THE NEW FOURTH

We will have accomplished quite a worthy purpose if we may mold the Fourth of July into a day to stress and emphasize our eternal battle against intolerance.

We have in this country an organization called The Council Against Intolerance in America. It is endeavoring through the slow and methodical means of truth spreading to make the American people realize the menace that lies in intolerance, and whether of class, race or religion.

There are fears that this poison is spreading through our national system. It may be that it is. It may be that many unthinking people are merely becoming vocal. But there must be no doubt or hesitation concerning their course upon the part of all those who realize what its results will be.

Within our gates countless presses are turning out journals, pamphlets and bills by the million that revile our form of government, the individual rights created under it, some of the religions within its broad folds, liberalism or conservatism depending upon the outlook of the author, fraternal orders, and particularly those that have been noted for strong patriotic programs.

The tone of discussion in these publications has bothered many readers because it is of the gutter. But that should be recognized as a piece of fortune. When the devil is himself he gains few converts. The dangerous periodical is the one that employs suavity to mislead the reader and a pretense of love and kindness to beguile him. We cannot believe that those publications that have come to our desk in the great flood of propaganda that eternally rains upon the country, could convince anyone developed mentally beyond the moronic stage.

But street fights, the use of billingsgate against some group of our citizenry, the continual blackening of the skies with thick clouds of sheets should not be permitted to pass without performing the service of warning. Free men must always be on guard. It is the confiding and the careless who find their hands pinned behind them. If liberty and the decent life are worth preserving they must be guarded against dryrot and vermin.

It should be enough, perhaps, for us all to realize that if intolerance of race, class and religion could be wiped off the continent of Europe there would be no danger of armed conflict there today.

SUBMARINE SABOTAGE

The idea that the loss of the three submarines was the result of sabotage has now been spoken by Henry Ford who makes good cars and runs a good business but sometimes gets strange ideas. Mr. Ford thinks the sabotage was inspired by "financial warmakers" to get this country into war. We don't believe there is any such thing as a financial warmaker among us. Mr. Ford should first point out the financial warmakers before he accuses them of an act of sabotage for now he has imaginary beings committing an almost impossible series of acts.

But if we are ever able to find "the financial warmakers" who have staged this monstrous conspiracy we should make friends with them for we will have discovered men so feverishly fanatical they were willing to die, to be slowly choked to death or drowned, out of loyalty to rude and grasping greed.

While none of this is beyond the ken of possibility no one is going to believe it unless he has already created someone he wants to punish with his suspicion. It may be a financial warmaker, which is a creature Mr. Ford started lashing 20 years ago and never quit, and it may be some fanatical worshipper of Nazism, or possibly, in order to save Germany and Italy it might have been a Russian Red.

One of the managers for a large life insurance company used to say that every time a person died who had an unusually large amount of insurance he noticed that in the next few weeks two more in the same class died. He may have made a mistake in looking upon it as a mere coincidence. Henry Ford could have straightened him out.

HISTORY IN THE REICH

Little Paul Joseph Goebbels, who makes propaganda for Herr Hitler, told a crowd in Berlin the other day: "We have but one aim—to get back all that of which history has cheated us." There was heavy applause, and probably honest applause. So little does the crowd think beyond what it can see and hear.

Little Goebbels didn't specify how far back in history he wants to go. And the crowd didn't think that he would not have to go back so very far to find all that fine territory east of the Elbe without a German in it, and a heavy dispute concerning quite a little of the territory east and next to the Rhine.

In attempting to live our lives today and make the lives of the future safe we still have a rendezvous with the past, but we must discuss honest questions in an honest way. We could carry history to the impractical point where everyone in this land would have to go back to Europe. Let Mr. Goebbels reflect upon what that would do to Nazism with opinions as they prevail in this country. Herr Hitler would get the bum's rush and the Bronx raspberry.

What little Goebbels really should have said to the Berlin crowd was that the Nazis wish to correct such errors of history as would improve their lot. And to do so they would write history to suit themselves. They wouldn't expect history to help the Czechs at all.

If it did it wouldn't be history.

MORE GOLD TO LATIN-AMERICA

One significant part of the President's recent 4 billion dollar spending program that is found to raise just opposition relates to turning over to certain Latin-American countries some 500 millions of the gold we have stored away and for which we have parted with an interest in our country to thousands of foreigners either by way of personal property delivered or a continuing stock and bond interest in our commerce and industries.

South American countries already owe the people of America over a billion dollars in defaulted bonds. Merely handing over another half billion would in itself be tantamount to nonsense.

But helping a debtor to his feet by wise and reasonable conditions exacted of him is another thing and to the mutual advantage of both the debtor and the creditor. Yet there cannot be a mutual advantage between any creditor and a dishonest debtor. Today we have, just as an example, Chile, owing the people of this country on defaulted bond issues about 215 million dollars. Instead of using her available dollar exchange for the purpose of paying such interest as she could upon this debt Chile devotes a large and important share of it to buying up the bonds at 15 cents on the dollar, a price that is bound to continue so long as she declines to pay any substantial part of the interest.

It would be possible to lay down conditions requiring the Latin-American countries to keep their finances in decent shape and conduct their treasury operations upon an honest basis. But wouldn't it really be funny to see the Roosevelt administration asking any country to run its financial affairs upon a sound basis?

In case, however, congress finds a way out by prescribing conditions agreeable to the Latin-American countries, we must resolve long in advance to enforce those conditions. We have already taught these countries that their code need be no better than the standard furnished by our own leading politicians in this country. It is conceivable therefore that they might agree to terms with the expectation of violating them after they received our gold. And it must be remembered that radicals know neither reason nor honor but have a great deal of respect for a fist that looks a little hard.

TIRES AND UNEMPLOYMENT

Colonel Ayres says that automobile tires apparently last much too long.

Back in 1915 cars were wearing out an average of eight tires per annum. Today they discard but one.

As late as 1928 tire sales for replacement were twice what they are now despite the fact that the number of cars has increased amazingly since.

We all realize this when we reflect upon our own experience. But it creates a situation that makes for unemployment, and a situation not dissimilar to some of those which the administration is attempting, fatuously and futilely, to offset in some unaccountable manner.

It would be just as sensible, it seems to us, for tire manufacturers to go back to the 1915 standards in order to take up the slack in unemployment as it would be to pursue any other course of pure wastage to gain the same end.

A Verse for Today

By Ahne Campbell

WHEN YOU WERE LITTLE

When you were little, there were three hooks, One for the baby, one for big brother, One for the girl who loved storybooks, Your coat must hang on its hook and no other

She wrote the names plainly above each one, Though you could not read them, you always knew

The hook that was meant for the little boy, And the one up high that belonged to you:

That was a long, long time ago But she dreamed one night and awoke with a start,

For she saw those hooks in a careful row On the lonely walls of her tired old heart.

GOV. LONG QUOTES SCRIPTURE
"Wickedness in Rulers" is a subtitle frequently appended, in standard editions of the King James Bible, to Chapter 16 of the Book of Proverbs. From this chapter comes the quotation that the new governor of Louisiana sprung upon surprised newspapermen at

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—The small claims court, it seems to me, is the biggest single boon to New York's little fellows (which is most of us) in years. Here a person may go without a lawyer, speak his piece and get justice.

The court, now soundly established, is for those citizens who seek to collect small sums which, if they had to have a lawyer, wouldn't be worth the bother. For instance:

A friend of mine wrote an article for a magazine. He was promised $75 for it. Time went on, the article was published, but no $75 was forthcoming. Repeated excuses were offered by the editor, and finally he told the author he could only pay $35. But even $35 was not forthcoming.

The author had heard of the small claims court so, having nothing else to do (being an author), he went to the court. To the clerk he presented his story. Immediately the court issued a subpoena for the editor to appear in court and answer the complaint. On the day set for the hearing, the editor failed to appear, whereupon the judge heard the author's story and gave him a judgment for $75.

So far there had been no expense to the author, except for subway fare to and from the court. There were no lawyer's fees and no court costs. Having the judgment, he took it to a deputy sheriff. The officer had a fee of $2.

"But can you collect the judgment," the author asked.

"If there is a desk or a piece of furniture at that office, I'll get it," replied the deputy sheriff, and the next day the author had his money.

The court is ideal for small tradespeople who otherwise would have no means of collecting small bills. Washerwomen, scrubwomen, and odd-jobs worker who often find small sums owing to them which they are unable to collect, are frequent users of the small claims court services. Of course a defendant, if he can afford it, can often prevent payment by appealing, but the very fact that the sums are small—always under $100, and generally running under $25—discourages appeals. It is cheaper to pay than to fight.

The magistrates in the small claims court don't quibble much with legal formality. They hear a complaint's story, hear a defendant's reply, listen sometimes to corroborative evidence if it seems needed, and then announce their decision. There are no "hifalutin" speeches, no long winded cross-examinations. The court drives quickly to the core of the trouble and metes out justice promptly.

Lately there have come to me two people suggesting I write a bit of an item about thoughtless suicides who endanger other lives. One fellow pulls up at my desk white as a sheet. A woman, he reported, had just jumped from a hotel window and come to a gory end on the sidewalk just ten feet in front of him. Another split second and she would have landed on him, and they would have both been goners. "It is getting," he complained, "so a fellow can't walk along the street without worrying about some dame dropping on his coccy out out of a clear sky. Something ought to be done."

Well, there's nothing I can do about it. The only suggestion that comes to mind at the moment is to build a hotel in the middle of a vacant lot and reserve rooms only for those folk who feel lumpy.

The other case was reported by a fellow who lives in a rooming house where a lady turned on the gas jets one balmy summer's evening. My friend's complaint is that the lives of everyone in the place were endangered because of the fire hazard. It seems that the gas exploded and set fire to the house, and the guests escaped only with the greatest difficulty. "And the lady who wanted to end it all," sighed my friend, "was the first one to be rescued, and she was glad of it, and is now very happy. People get morbid and do these things, and it's all right with me; but they ought to be more careful about other people."

From a press announcement by Paramount Pictures: "Joseph Allen, formerly known as Joseph Allen Jr., henceforth will be known as Joseph Allen Jr."

It certainly must be very complicated being a cineman.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Monday, July 1, 1929

Employees of the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company had started tearing up the street car tracks from E. Calumet street north on S. Oneida street. All of the interurban line running through the city limits was to be torn up. J. H. Hall, superintendent of the Appleton water works plant, and I. Tornow, superintendent of the distribution department, had returned from Toronto, Canada, where they attended the international convention of the water works association. Over 2,500 delegates attended the sessions.

Construction of a $200,000 addition to the central office building of the Wisconsin Telephone company was to start Monday, according to H. M. Fellows, local manager. The company decided to build the addition here because Appleton was centrally located and held an important place in Wisconsin's long distance telephone service. New equipment was to cost $220,000. Appleton had the distinction of being the first city in Wisconsin to have telephone service, it was noted.

25 YEARS AGO
Monday, July 6, 1914

At the meeting of the St. Joseph society the previous day, Fred Stoffel was elected a delegate to the national convention of the German Catholic societies which to be held at Pittsburgh soon. J. B. Langenberg was named alternate.

A feature of the observance of Independence day at Oshkosh was the unveiling of a statue of Carl Schurz, German-American patriot and former resident of Wisconsin, presented to the city by Colonel John Hicks, publisher of the Northwestern and former minister to Peru and Chile.

L. Hugo Keller was to spend his vacation reading law in Krugmeier and Heinemann's office preparatory to his taking up a course in law.

H. J. Fose had sold his residence on Summer street to Ed Berg. Mr. Fose previously bought the Fred Hartung residence on North street where he was to reside.

his inauguration: "Better a little with righteousness than great revenues without right." Gov. Long said this would be adopted as the motto for his administration, and termed it "very significant."

But what is the significance, exactly? Is it a promise of reform—an implication of past guilt on the part of his political predecessors? Or is it merely a case of a governor citing scripture for his purpose? Must we cry out, with Mathew, "O Generation of Vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Or may we, in a spirit of utmost charity, quote Jeremiah to the political rulers of Louisiana? "Turn ye again now every one from his evil way, and from the evil of your doings, and dwell in the land that the Lord hath given unto you and to your fathers forever and ever."

Pending an expected federal investigation of Louisiana affairs, the whole question had best be left open.—Chicago News

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Every once in a while a wrathful Congress cracks down on one of those pleasant ways of making money in this racket-clogged city and so it did to the profitable business of peddling lists of big salary names.

After all, Barnum made a good living for a long time exploiting suckers. He played the low priced variety with his dime-a-throw sideshows. In Washington the best money is to be had from wealthier contributors, although a long list of dollar-a-year contributors is not to be sniffed at.

The latest racket to be knocked off was the distribution of lists of people earning high salaries in industry. In a way, the present administration was responsible for the evil. Three years ago, in an energetic hunt for tax dodgers and in an effort to show that big money continued to go to executive help while labor was being exploited or something, there was enacted a law requiring publication of names of people with salaries of $15,000 a year or more.

Lists Published
Newspapers published the lists as they were released but that wasn't the end of it. An enterprising Washington agency compiled them again and offered them to magazine circulation agencies and other potential buyers. A nicely tabulated list of people earning $15,000 a year, a valuable "sucker list," could be had for $50. The trifling Arizona list could be had for 50 cents while the New York list cost $17.50.

The publication of such lists always has been a pain to the upper salary brackets. It is embarrassing back home to be marked up that way and senators and representatives have been hearing much about it in the mail.

Senator Danaher, of Connecticut, took the case to the Senate and without much opposition attached an amendment to the tax bill prohibiting circulation "for sale" of such lists. He specifically exempted newspapers, which was safe enough bet of course, as they would not re-publish the lists since they already had published them.

It is always a source of surprise to this city's innocent bystanders when it hears of some new revenue raiser suffering from exposure. Only recently the Associated Gas and Electric paid $55,000 to a Washington representative for services so intangible that the Securities and Exchange Commission held an hilarious hearing to learn about it.

Some Honest Services
People claiming, honestly or otherwise, to have close acquaintance with high public figures can make jack out of their connections. Some of them supply an honest service by steering troubled people out of blind alleys in dealing with the Government but others operate just plain rackets.

When we were a comparatively fresh arrival on the Washington scene we had our eyes opened by disclosures of the sums which reputable industrial barons paid for silly services during the boom days of NRA and the early alphabet agencies.

An illustrative story told them stands good now, of a manufacturer of building materials who paid $5,000 to a Washington slickster for a list of contractors on public works projects. He could have had the list for the price of a telephone call to the PWA, which published it. However, it seems somebody has to keep the money in circulation.

AN UNSAFE AND INSANE FOURTH.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Doubtless there are few citizens who believe that members of the legislature spend all their time in Madison making laws. In every session, the chosen of the people manage to crowd in a lot of fun, diversions of many kinds.

One of the standard feasts is the legislative banquet, which may be sponsored by someone who hasn't an axe to grind, but generally isn't.

One of the most entertaining "eating festivals" thus far this session was Assemblyman Frank Graess' annual fish banquet. A feature of the entertainment program was a long list of "request numbers", conducted by legislators and rendered by Assemblyman "Goldy" Goldthorpe and his family band.

Heading the program was "Marching Through Georgia," requested by Gov. Heil and his 78 colonels.

"There is a Tavern in the Town" was credited to Swanson, the legislature's most persistent dry, while "Working on the Railroad" came from Van Guilder, representative of a railroad town who does yeoman's service for the carriers in floor debate against the trucking interests.

From Senator Mack came a "request" for "It's a Long, Long Highway that has No Turn," which was pertinent in view of Mack's steady hostility toward the administration's feverish desire to capture control of the state highway commission. Senator Mueller, finance chief of the legislature, was recorded in favor of "Pennies from Heaven," while Senator Paulson, the program said, wanted "One O'clock in the Morning," although he is the legislature's only professional cleric.

SATIRE
Biting satire was apparent in some of the other program listings, such as "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse" for Bonnie Gettelman, the senate's tireless oratorical champion of the old-age pension cause, and "You Made Me What I Am Today, I Hope You're Satisfied," for Phil Nelson, who became a Progressive after growing up as a Republican.

To the great advantage of the LaFollette cause in 1937, "Follow Me," was for Maurice Coakley, peppery floorleader for the administration in the senate, and "Oh, You Married Kid," for Fitzsimmons, who never gets tired of denouncing the merits of government women on the public pay roll.

The legislature's staunch and veteran defender of fish, Conservationist Graess himself, was listed behind "The Three Little Fishes," while "Sweethearts" was for Assemblyman Catlin and Biemiller, Republican and Socialist, who like each other so well that they sit at opposite ends of the assembly chamber.

"If Get You Yet," was for Gruzka, leader of a one-man purge movement for the conservation department, while "My District, 'Tis of Thee" was attributed as the request of Balzer, who thunders almost daily of the sterling character of the people in West Allis who have elected and reelected him to the assembly (albeit the last time by a doubtful majority).

"The Red, White and Blue" was credited to Schmidt, who thinks that all school children ought to be

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

SEES IN THE DARK

Sir Edward Mellanby says (in "Nutrition and Disease," Oliver & Boyd, London, '34): "I have personally given iodine to many patients (with exophthalmic goitre) and a large number of these have made permanent and complete recoveries in times varying from six months to several years." The daily dose of iodine Mellanby mentions is equivalent to the daily quantity of iodine in the Iodin Lactin recommended by Dr. Doc Brady.

Having noted the large number of recoveries in exophthalmic goitre under the iodine treatment Mellanby makes a characteristic comment: "Whether they would have recovered without such treatment I cannot say."

Now I can sympathize with ED—I mean Sir Edward about that I am in a similar quandary in regard to vitamin A.

For years I have been noted (Washington physician who inquired anonymously what for please read carefully) for (a) my cowardliness in night driving—when I meet another car I pull over and wait beside the road until I can see the road again; (2) my extraordinary knack of discovering impediments anywhere within a day's march of the place where my bed was last night, as I grope my way unaided in the dark tonight. It is unendingly declares my boss, how unerringly I come upon things at a 15¢ hour no matter where she has put them the day before.

Well, here recently science made available small capsules, each containing 25,000 units of natural vitamin A—not the provitamin A called carotene which has to be converted into vitamin A in the body, but the natural vitamin A obtained from fish liver oil. Since 910 of the thousand human guinea pigs I called for declined to participate in the experiment, I finally decided to try it on the dog.

I took one capsule at breakfast time, along with the handful of vitamin supplements I usually take then. I intended to take three capsules in the course of the day—75,000 units of vitamin A natural, a fair dose for a test. But in the heat of the daily quarrel I forgot the other two doses. That is, until I crept to bed in the dark, around 2 a.m. Then I found, to my astonishment that altho it was a cloudy night with less than the usual starlight I could discern everything in the room with sufficient clarity to avoid even the slightest collision.

On the next night I was gratified to discover that I could drive against the headlamp glare of approaching traffic with remarkable freedom from the timidity or anxiety I had generally felt.

Whether I would have observed these phenomena without the vitamin A I cannot say. What do you think?

compelled to salute the flag every day, while Senator Ducl, who says little and always votes right, that is as a regular Republican, was listed as wanting to hear "Hold Tight, Sit Tight, Vote Tight."

The program said that "Asleep in the Deep" was desired by Bolens, who occasionally has to be awakened from a nap to register on roll calls, while "Don't Give Up the Ship" came from Mike Kresky, who has shouted his voice hoarse in the senate despite the fact that anyone could see that he was beaten.

Don't tell me. Try it out for yourself and see whether you experience any effect from vitamin A.

Could medicinally pure refined sulphur or just plain sulphur (old) be substituted for the precipitated sulphur in your dandruff remedy? E.S.)

Answer—Yes, but precipitated sulphur is odorless makes the smoothest ointment or pomade, lightest in color. For monograph on Care of Hair and Control of Dandruff, send stamped envelope bearing your address. No clipping please; ask for what you want.

One thing After Another
One of your readers told of her vacation being ruined by sunburn. The second week of mine was devoted to nursing painful sunburn and then the day before I came home I got poison ivy, which kept me in misery for four more weeks. Some articles on these subjects ought to interest a lot of people right now. (W.T.L.)

Answer—Human nature is funny that way. Such articles interest people only when they're suffering with the trouble. However, prevention and relief of both sunburn and prurient poisoning are dealt with in practical way in booklet "Save Your Skin"—for copy send one cent stamped envelope bearing your address, and inclose twenty-five cents coin. Do not send clipping in lieu of your request.

Foot Itch
Please give the recipe for the ointment for foot itch. (S.C.)

Answer—Salicylic acid 15 grains, benzoic acid 25 grains, soft petrolatum two drams, coconut oil enough to make one ounce of salve. Apply at night to affected patches for a week.

Boosts Wheeler As Liberal for President's Job

Johnson Urges Nomination of Montana Senator for Candidacy

Washington—There is good deal more than mere admiration of one senator for another in the boom just started by Senator Johnson of Colorado, Democrat, urging the nomination of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana for the presidency in the Democratic ticket in 1940.

First it will be noted that Senator Johnson "assumes" that President Roosevelt will refuse the nomination. This is important in order that there may be not the slightest offense given to the president or encouragement offered to those who might constitute the candidacy of an anti-Roosevelt affair.

Next it will be observed that Mr. Johnson takes pains to point out that only on a few things has Senator Wheeler differed from the president and then only in method rather than in objective.

Examined closely, this can be translated into some significant political strategy. For the main premise of the "draft Roosevelt" cohorts is that a "liberal" must be nominated and that the president can make the best run on his own record. But on the other hand, hardly anybody who wants to be fair about it can say Burt Wheeler is not a liberal. His record speaks for himself.

From the earliest days of the administration, Mr. Wheeler has been on the "liberal" side of the fight. If the anti-holding company bill was a test of liberalism, the Montana senator, it will be recalled, led the fight for the Wheeler-Burns law. If the Wagner Labor act was a test, he was found supporting that measure wholeheartedly. Again and again he has been in the forefront of the administration's fights. It will be recalled that he ran for the vice presidency on the Progressive ticket in 1924 with the late Senator LaFollette.

So much have certain New Dealers been impressed with the voting record of this Montana senator that a few days ago published reports, perhaps inspired from some of the younger New Dealers, had it that Mr. Wheeler would be a welcome running mate for the vice presidency along with the "draft Roosevelt" ticket.

Maybe the New Dealers got advance word of what was being planned by Senator Johnson of Colorado and sought to head him off by turning the Montana senator to the plan of an alliance with the president for 1940. Anyway, Senator Wheeler announced unequivocally that he would not run on a third-term ticket with the president and didn't believe Mr. Roosevelt wanted a third term and so on.

The upshot of the week's developments is that Mr. Wheeler has been urged to go it alone by his colleagues and it would not be surprising if he became the leading liberal candidate on the Democratic ticket, just as Vice President Garner is coming to be the leading conservative candidate, both the Garner and Wheeler booms being based on the assumption that Mr. Roosevelt in due time will announce his refusal to accept a re-nomination.

Fought Court Packing
What would the president's attitude be toward the Wheeler candidacy? The one, almost unparaphrased sin that Senator Wheeler committed was to lead the memorable fight in the senate against the enlargement of the supreme court. It was a bitter fight and has left its scars. But it would appear that the administration now considers it won that fight after all because vacancies occurred in the court which enabled the president to accomplish what he set forth in his original message to congress on the nature of the decisions of the court. If the New Deal has won anyway, then Mr. Wheeler is more to be pitied than scorned for his allegedly futile efforts.

Mr. Wheeler could be expected to carry on the New Deal policies, correcting them in practical aspects but maintaining their liberal flavor and purpose. He is a sincere and not an artificial liberal and what some of the business elements who have come up against him say is that he will listen to argument and attempt to work out solutions of complicated problems on a practical basis. He has, of course, antagonized other business elements but the New Dealers never worry about that. What they do worry about is whether a so-called liberal can be absorbed hook, line and sinker by selfish, conservative interests. They need have little worry about Burt Wheeler.

Hard Worker
Talking a look at Burt Wheeler from another angle, he is found to be of old New England stock, a good campaigner, a hard worker, and a public servant with the courage of

Gets 20 Days for Assault, Battery
Same Man Fined $100 And Costs at Oshkosh For Drunken Driving

Oshkosh—The Fourth of July holiday developed into at least a 20-day vacation in the Winnebago county jail for Antone Bryzski, 32, route 1, Menasha.

Bryzski, this morning pleaded guilty of assault and battery and drunken driving when he was arraigned, before Judge S. J. Luchinger in municipal court. He was sentenced to 20 days on the assault charge and was fined $100 and costs with an alternative of 90 days in the county jail for drunken driving. He had not paid the fine at noon. His driver's license was revoked.

Bryzski's wife lodged the complaint against her husband telling police he had assaulted her before he left Sunday evening. She testified to that effect in court this morning.

County police picked up Bryzski on the assault and battery charge about 9 o'clock last night on Highway 14 and then charged him with driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

his convictions. He has made enemies in public life, but he has made friends too. The presence of the Wheeler boom is bound to be of more embarrassment to the "draft Roosevelt" generals than the Garner boom, for it cannot be brushed aside as the creature of reactionary interests.

Mr. Wheeler has won his spurs in the cause of liberalism. Why should he be denied a chance for the nomination? The burden of proof to the contrary will rest on the officeholding group who may find themselves forced into the position publicly of seeming to want to violate tradition merely to perpetuate themselves in power. And the odd part of it is that, if elected, Burt Wheeler is the type who probably would not dismiss from the policy-making jobs any individual of sound administrative capacity just because he occasionally came into the government as a Roosevelt liberal.

Wife Some Times Responsible For Husband's Shortcomings

BY DOROTHY DIX

Listen, wives! Do you ever think that you may be largely responsible for the faults in your husbands to which you most object? There is his taking you for granted, for instance, which is perhaps the No. 1 grievance of married women. Your husband has ceased to be a lover. He never pays you a compliment. He never notices what you have on. He never gives you a kiss except one that is so flabby that it is more of an insult than it is a caress. Goodness knows, you never expected marriage to be like THAT.

Well, stop your breast-beating long enough to get a line on your own conduct. Perhaps you are accessory to the crime of your marriage going flat. If your husband is no longer a lover, have you kept on being a Lady Love yourself? Have you dressed yourself up for him and kept yourself looking attractive? Or have you felt that any old rag was good enough to slouch around home in?

DOROTHY DIX Have you met him when he came home at night with a glad, sweet smile or a grudge? Have you given him the rim of your ear or the back of your head instead of your lips when he tried to kiss you? Lots of men quit making love to their wives because their wives treat them as if they were cash registers instead of Romeos.

Perhaps your husband is no fire-side companion. As soon as dinner is over he puts on his hat and goes downtown. That's bad, of course. But is your home a place of peace and rest and quiet, where a tired man can relax and gather up strength for the next day? Or is it a place of nagging and fretting and whining that he flees from to save his life? Do you set him down to a good dinner of the things he likes and cooked the way he likes 'em, or to a meal that adds indigestion to his other troubles?

What sort of entertainment do you offer him? Are you bright and witty and amusing? Or do you expect him to be diverted by listening to your complaints about how hard you have worked, and how butchers' meat has gone up, and that the doctor says little Mary's adenoids must come out, and that the baby broke his best pipe, and so on and so on?

Maybe your pet peeve is that your husband doesn't take you out stepping once in a blue moon. You think that it is just terrible that he doesn't realize how monotonous housework is and how dull it is spending the day with no one but the baby for company, and how you long to get out in the bright lights for a change. But what encouragement do you give him to spend his money on trying to give you a good time? Do you play up to him and look and act thrilled as you did when you had a date with him before you were married? Or do you find fault with everything he does?

Do you hold him responsible if it happens to rain or something goes wrong with the car? Do you blame him if you don't like the movie or the play you go to? Do you say that, of course, "He would get the worst seats in the house?" Do you not even try to make conversation, but sit up looking bored to death in the midst of the most thrilling scene of a play or when the prima donna is reaching for her highest note, do you interrupt it to ask him if he thinks the baby has got uncovered? There isn't much fun in taking out a wet blanket for an evening's pleasure, you know.

Another one of your grievances is that your husband doesn't talk at home, that he buries himself behind his paper of an evening and is just about as entertaining a companion as a graven image would be. Maybe he is afraid to talk. Maybe he has found out that the only safe thing is silence and that he can't broach any subject without starting a fight. Maybe he tries to tell a story you tell him that you have heard that before. Maybe you correct every statement he makes and say that the instance he is relating didn't happen at 5 o'clock, it took place at 4:59. Maybe when he tries to tell you about his hopes and plans you don't even listen to him, and so he just shuts up like a clam when he is at home.

Perhaps you and your husband don't get along together. You are always scrapping and live a cat-and-dog life. Undoubtedly, he is as much to blame as you are, but have you ever really tried to get along with him? You know the things that irritate him. Do you refrain from doing them? You know his likes and dislikes. Do you cater to them? You know how to rub his fur the right way so

Experts See Points That Others Miss

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Some of the points that experts consider in arriving at very close decisions are extremely subtle; indeed, they probably would go unnoticed by the average player. Such a point was involved in the following hand:

East, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

NORTH
♠ J 5 5
♥ J 10 6 5 4

♣ A 10 8

EAST

♦ A Q 7 6 4
♣ None

SOUTH
♠ None
♦ A K 10 9 8 2
♣ K Q J 5 4 2

The bidding:
East South West North
1 heart 2 hearts Pass 2 no trump
Pass 3 clubs 4 spades Double
5 clubs 5 spades 6 clubs
6 spades Pass Pass 7 clubs
Pass Pass Double Pass

I recognize that there are several bids in the above sequence to which most players will take exception and, indeed, I am not defending each and every bid on the basis of academic correctness. The fact remains that this was the sequence produced by four master players and, therefore, I hardly need say that none of the bids was actually illogical. The student probably will take his first exception to South's two heart bid—an overall in the opponents' suit which usually shows a tremendous honor trick count. I call attention, however, to the Culbertson rule that provides "An immediate overcall in the opponents' suit . . . requires at the least five honor tricks, or freakish distribution, which makes a game both probable and safe, even though partner has no assistance." Also, of course, such a bid usually guarantees first round control of the opponents' suit (the ace or a void), but for strategic purposes it is permissible to make the bid when holding a singleton. Undoubtedly South had "freakish distribution" and I am not inclined to criticize his choice.

West held his peace on the first round, knowing that he would have a chance to show his tremendous playing strength later. The bidding then proceeded normally until North had to take some action over West's four spade bid. His double will be shocking to most players and, indeed, I do not wholly approve it, but the fact is he did not know that South had a 6-6 two-suiters and, believing that South was void of hearts, felt that a heart opening might punish four spades severely.

The crucial decision, however, fell on North when East's six spade bid was passed around to him. After the original cue bid by South, and with an ace in the North hand, most players in the latter position would not think twice about doubling. They would feel morally certain of taking at least two tricks. But this North indulged in no such superficial reasoning or snap judgment. Even though he had doubled four spades he now was highly dubious about his ability to defeat six! The significant point (which most players would overlook) was that South had made a forcing pass to six spades. Surely, if he had actually been void in hearts and held doubled the six spades without leaving the decision to North, North reasoned correctly that South must have at least one trick in diamonds and clubs that he would consider a sure winner; if, in addition, he could ruff an opening heart lead, surely he would not hesitate to double. The fact that he had failed to double proved indisputably to North that an opening heart lead by himself would not be ruffed by his partner! That being so, there was no assurance whatever of defeating six spades. Having arrived at that conclusion, North decided to take no chances on the hand and bravely bid seven clubs as a sacrifice.

North's decision turned out very well. Six spades would have been a laydown for 980 points, whereas the seven club contract was defeated only four tricks for 700 points.

Beauty and You

Beach scenes girls should avoid!

If you go down to the sea this Fourth of July, pack your best deportment and take it along with you!

There is nothing quite so character-robbing as to see a girl misbehave on the beach. You're to have fun, yes, lots of it. You can swim, sun bathe, play beach games. But there are several things which you should not do if you do wish not to be criticized.

Remember that the beach is not the place for a private necking party. You've seen couples intertwined on the sand, lolling all over on another or actually embracing. That's the height of bad taste and nice girls wouldn't be seen in such situations.

It is all well and good to play ball and other beach games, but you must consider others who are less active than yourself. Choose a spot where no people are taking a sun bath, or eating their lunch. You wouldn't want to eat sand with a ham and cheese, and neither do they! Screaming disturbs peaceful slumbers, and as far as you know, the drowsing person might be at the beach for health, and needs what rest he or she can get.

Try to remember that bathing suits have a habit of pulling up. For creeping suits are targets for candid cameras and if you could see yourself from the rear, you would know what! Speaking about swim suits, take care that your upper half is covered adequately. It is not very feminine to push a man about the beach, to kick him or to aid him in ducking a companion who does not wish to go into the water. Persons usually have very good reasons for not wanting to jump in with the others and it is their privilege to decline your invitation to swim. Romp off yourself and let them stay where they are.

If you lunch by the water be neat about it. Your sandwich wrappings and other lunch waste scattered about detract from the pleasure of others. You should have the decency to pick up after your meal and put the trash in the places provided for it. Every beach has them. Leave your portion of the shore in as good condition as you found it, or slightly improved!

And . . . don't shake out your towels, beach robes, etc., in other people's faces. Pick them up and carry them to a spot where shaking and wind will not carry the sand in directions of others. Down by the water is usually a safe bet.

Now that I have given you the "don'ts" of good beach behavior let me say "DO have a good time and acquire a lot of health! Take care of your skin, your hair, your eyes and come back at the end of the day with spirits bubbling over without the least bit of regret for having spent the day under the sun!

Don't be a low-browed bathing beauty! Send for my corrective exercises and be sure to enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a three-cent stamp.

Parents Should Ignore Child Who Threatens to Leave Home

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Ma, I have to have a new baseball."
"Why I bought you one two days ago."
"It wasn't any good. We busted it the second game. I have to have a new one for this afternoon's game."
"I don't know about this. You get too much of this and that. You have an allowance, but you don't seem to find it enough. Nothing is enough for you. I can't be handing out money to you all the time. Your brother never asks for anything. If he can make his things do, and his allowance cover his needs, why can't you?"

"That's it. Lovely brother. You always stick up for him. Me you never do a thing for. All right. Don't. See if I care. The next thing you know I'll run away. Nobody here wants me. I can't have any thing I want. Brother always has to have it. All right, all right. You'll see. Don't ask me to come back, that's all."

Such talk ought not to worry mothers but it does, and the young rascal knows it will. He counts on stirring up enough anxiety to get his way. This lad will take the money for the baseball and go his way rejoicing in the thought that he knew how to get around his mother. When he wants the next thing, which will be right soon, he will return with the same selfish, demanding behavior, and win again. Unless his mother awakens to what is happening.

The demanding child worms his way into the family scheme before he is noticed. Once set in his way it is difficult to dislodge him, but it can be done. Give him his allowance, one you believe suited to his needs and to the state of the family budget. Set his share of family responsibility, considering his ability, not his wishes. Give him what he should have as his share always, but no more no matter how he complains. His complaints are his weapons. Render them powerless by ignoring them.

When this sort of child says he will run away tell him calmly that he will find the door open, both ways. Don't look worried. Don't give him the idea that you thought his threat important. After telling him that the door is wide open, attend to something else and let him find himself stranded for attention and conversation. He is not likely to run away. Demanding, selfish children like the comfort of home too well. If they do make an excursion it is with one foot on the home base.

The daughter of the family is likely to do this if inclined that way. Girls can be quite as tyrannical as boys, and can be just as selfish. If mothers decided at the start that each child as he came along would have to carry his full share of the home life, and stuck to it, these demanding children would not get as far as they sometimes do. Unselfish mothers are too likely to create selfish children.

But it is not always the fault of the parents. Some children come that way. They have to be corrected, held to the line of family custom, until they learn their place in the scheme of things. They will never learn it if they are not checked early.

If "My youngsters won't mind me," is your constant complaint, send for Angelo Patri's booklet, "Obedience," enclosing ten cents. Address Angelo Patri, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

BY ANNE ADAMS

You can "figure" on scoring a hit whenever you appear in this figure-slenderizing Anne Adams fro. Pattern 4183. An all-occasion, style you'll wear to club meetings, bridge afternoons, social evenings. And it's so easy to put together with the handy aid of the Sewing Instructor. The graceful line that the neck makes may be extended by sewing a row of buttons to your very waist. The squared waist-girdle flattens and flatters your midriff, and easy softness through the bodice is released by generous darts and gathers. The center panel of the skirt would be smart cut on the bias. You may open the sleeves or just make them straight.

Pattern 4183 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 38 takes 3 1/2 yds. 39 inch fabric and 2 1/2 yards lace edging.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly, name, address and style number.

Send your order to Appleton Post-Crescent, Pattern Department, 243 W. 17th St., New York, N. Y.

cally included them (which she was perfectly right not to have done). It is too bad that your evidently tactful letter caused a family storm by making her feel that she should ought to have done the same thing! Anyway, let us hope it has blown over by now.

To What Extent Courtesy?

Dear Mrs. Post: When guests in our house lose money to us at card games should we take their money? Doesn't the fact that we are hosts make it seem inhospitable for us to consider their card debts seriously?

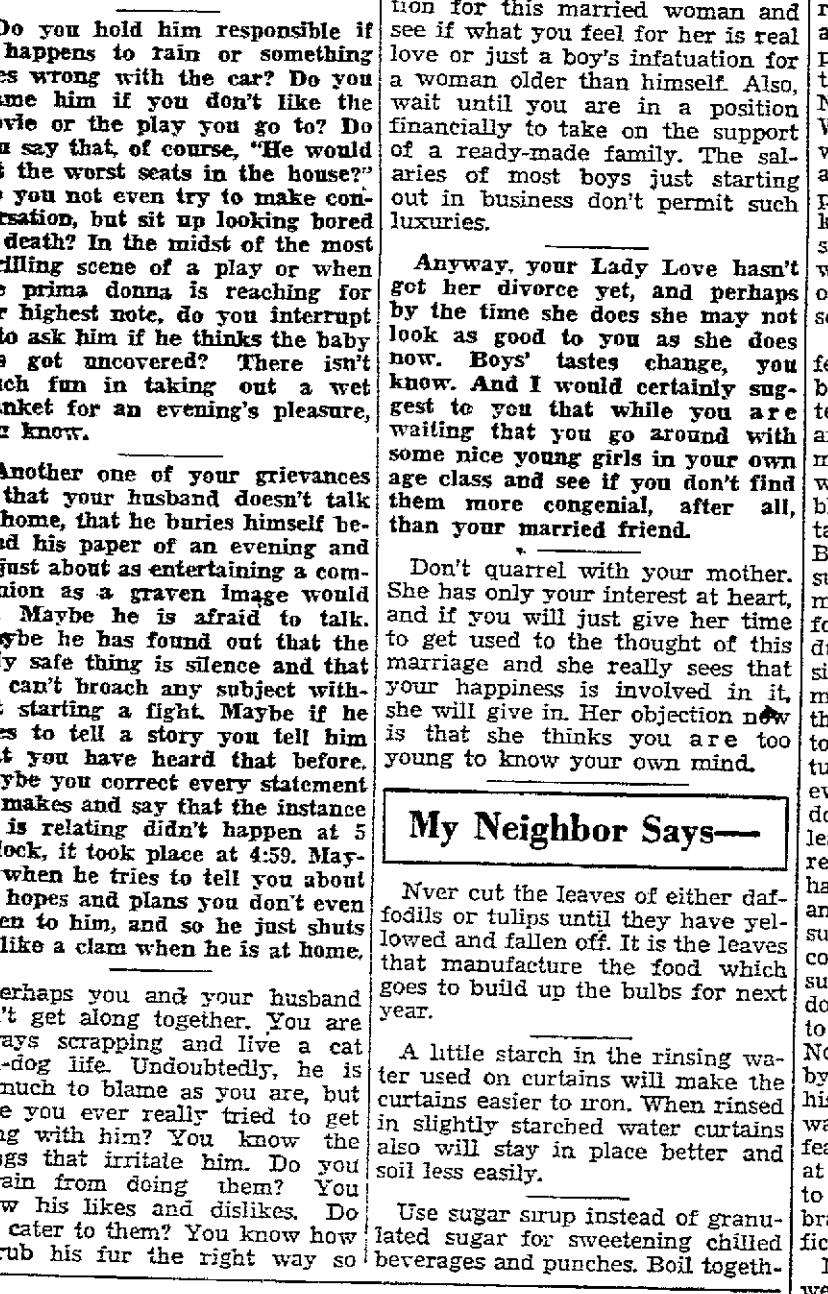

Answer: If you always play for money you must continue to play for it; if you don't play for it, I mean, if you object to taking money in your own house then the answer is, fill the tables without counting yourselves when those who are expected, always play for money. You can't ask them to carry you, nor in any way ask them to change their customary habits.

Questions About Tipping

Dear Mrs. Post: (a) There is a question in my mind about this. When arrangements are made for a large hotel for an after-the-theater supper party, what is the usual gratuity for the head waiter? Is it given to him at the time arrangements are made, or on the night of the party? And is ten per cent enough for the waiter? (b) Also, when one stays a week at a resort hotel, is it good policy to top the head waiter, and when?

Answer: (a) You give head waiter ten per cent of the whole bill and ask him to divide it. This amount is usually plenty when you are having a party and the bill is therefore of considerable size. (b) It might be better policy—especially if you have never stayed in a hotel—to give him a moderate tip when you arrive and if he is especially efficient in looking after you, to give him an additional tip when you leave. If he pays no further attention to you he certainly should not expect any more.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Appleton Post-Crescent Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly, pattern number, your name and address.

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

While out on your holiday or picnic trip do not neglect an opportunity to collect some washed sharp sand from a friendly source. This sand will be very useful in rooting the cuttings which are to be made in the very near future.

Avoid collecting bank sand and sand which packs very finely since neither of these materials is good for rooting cuttings. Still another disadvantage of bank sand is that it may contain tiny particles of clay or bits of vegetable debris which would set up a fungous growth in the cutting material and kill the plants before they have a chance to root.

Also to be avoided is the sand which represents the gradual falling apart of sandstone. Sandstone, as a whole, contains a too heavy concentration of limy materials to make a good rooting medium.

Best of all are the brook and river sands which for ages have been washed free of those ingredients which would cause them to pack too tightly or produce impurities.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Smug, prudish America complacently believes that ignorance produces angels while scientific facts make devils. Don't let yourself be guilty of this quaint fallacy. Delinquent children and minor criminals result from ignorance. The truth shall set you free! Science can clean up everything, from war supply and disease, to moral conflicts. Feed your children facts, and plenty of them.

Case N-179: Edith J., aged 21, works as a dental assistant.

"But I have been in a sanitarium for two months because of a nervous breakdown," she said.

"I got so I couldn't work in the office an hour before I would start crying and grow panicky I thought I would die or go crazy or something."

"I am so afraid of being alone. If there is nobody else in the house with me I am terrified. I am scared of dying."

"Now here is something I've never confessed to anybody before. My parents never told me anything they suffer, but will demand daily recourse to the doctor for advice on which tie they should wear or what kind of meat they should cook for dinner. I am not exaggerating at all."

At this very moment I have a dozen patients who call me every day for such counsel about little decisions. They lean upon me as a fracture patient leans upon his crutch.

Recovery of Fractured Personalities

There is a very close parallel between the treatment of patients with fractured legs and those with fractured emotional lives. Both must be scientifically treated so that conditions are favorable for the "knitting" process.

As the leg heals, the patient puts less weight on his crutch and more on his injured member. Similarly, as the mental or neurotic patient recovers, he will lean less and less on the doctor. Finally both patients can discard their crutches, and depend upon themselves.

Sex Complexes Make Invalids

Edith's breakdown resulted from a fear that she had committed a very sinful act. She felt branded as a moral leper, and believed she ought to be ostracized from society, which is one reason for her excessive fear about being alone in the house. Society reminds her of the social desertion which she dreads.

Moreover, she felt leaped upon by marriage, but felt she could never go through with the ceremony without confessing her childhood escapades to her fiancé. But she also didn't dare do so, for she feared she would lose his respect and love. In the resulting dilemma, she broke down.

It is criminal to torture children and young people by withholding sane scientific advice from them concerning sexual matters. This girl's torture is an indictment of smug, prudish America. Send for my bulletin on "Sex Education for Children" according to the instructions below.

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a 3-cent stamp, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover printing and typing costs. Letters and readers' names are never published.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

Chapter 32
Fire!

BEFORE dinner that night Jocelyn went in to see old Mack. It was the first time she had visited him since Thorn's tragic denouement of how the old man had swindled him out of the Russell inheritance. She went because Gramp was the only person she felt she could really talk to.

He was alone in his room, poring over a scented sheet of pale blue paper. When he looked up she saw that tears had dampened the network of wrinkles about his eyes.

"Am I intruding, Gramp?" she asked hesitantly.

"Tosh and nonsense!" he exclaimed. "Come right in and set down here by me. What's this I hear 'bout Kensing rentin' a room here?"

"You hear everything, don't you, Gramp?"

"Yep. Nothin' wrong with my ears."

"Yes, Geoffrey's staying here." Defiance tinged her voice. "He wants to make up."

"You got any ideas 'bout it?"

"I suppose I will agree. I've known him so long. I—I'm used to him. Gramp, Am I could fill up my life with children and parties and trips and . . ."

"Horses!" Gramp snorted. "Might as well marry a horse and be done with it," he grumbled. "He's a two-legged horse and a mean one."

"He isn't really mean," she protested timidly. "I can handle him very well."

"Oughtn't to marry a man you can handle! Josie, I'm disappointed in you. I figured you had lots of fight and gumption. Why in tarnation are you lettin' a blonde snatch the man you want?"

"I thought you liked Nola," she evaded.

"Didn't say I didn't. But she ain't the one for Tally. She won't make him happy. She's got too much money. She'll go a-draggin' him off to fancy places and he'll be mighty miserable." He tapped the letter on his lap with a crooked forefinger.

"I kept this hid, Josie, ever since I found it quite a spell back. Your grandma and me used to put notes in a secret drawer in that old cabinet when we was courtin'. Jest for old times' sake I tried to see if I still knew how to open it when we come here. I—I run across a letter to me—she must have figured some day I'd come along and maybe find it. She wrote it jest . . . jest afore she died. . . ."

Silently, he handed the letter to Jocelyn, and silently she accepted it and read it. Her grandmother's familiar handwriting:

"Talbot, My Dear—

I write this in the fond hope that some day your eyes will read it. No one else knows or ever has known of this secret place of ours. I have just finished making out my will and, although the doctor will not tell me I am dying, I know. I do not want to die, Talbot. Does anyone ever want to die? I think not. For many years, through my solicitors, I have followed the adventures of your family. I know your grandson is a fine young man, unspoiled by money, unselfish in his devotion to you and the others. I am hoping that this sentimental, seemingly inconsistent will of mine will be the means of bringing together my granddaughter Jocelyn, and your grandson. I want them to be poor, I trust. Thornydyke, my eldest grandchild, does not want me to build a future together. Solidly love and marriage with hardship and trouble shared and overcome.

I should never have run away from you. Years of empty living have given me that bitter knowledge. I loved you, Talbot. I never stopped. But we were of the generation who laid in the beds we

EMPHASIS ON TACT

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently I had an experience similar to the one you wrote about in your column, that of where the groom wanted his bride to write a thank-you note to his boss for a gift that had been given to him personally and had not included her at all. My husband received a check—a very big one—from his mother, shortly after we were married. This was addressed to him alone with a note explaining that she was sharing this extra money with all three sons. Naturally he was jubilant and sat down and wrote her a glowing note of thanks. It never occurred to me to write until he asked if I didn't think it would be a nice thing to do, so of course, I was glad to write her a note telling her how generous and welcome the check had been. She has written since then that I was the only daughter-in-law who wrote about the check. Can the other daughters-in-law be blamed for not taking for granted that they had a share in the presents? I think my mother-in-law is judging them unfairly.

Answer: As I understand the situation I think your mother-in-law is wrong in having expected her sons' wives to have written letters of thanks for presents given to their husbands. They would have been just as likely, had they all written, to have made her think that they were assuming a right to a share in the checks, and to have made her resent this. Or she might have been embarrassed at not having specifically included them (which she was perfectly right not to have done). It is too bad that your evidently tactful letter caused a family storm by making her feel that she should ought to have done the same thing! Anyway, let us hope it has blown over by now.

FRESH WATER CLAMS

Sometimes we hear a person say that someone else "shut up like a clam," in other words, did not talk anymore.

A clam never talks in the first place, but it does shut up. It has muscles which can pull the two parts of its shell together and hold them tightly.

Three parts of a clam's "step". (After Buchsbaum.)

Clams are found both in the sea and in fresh water. Those which live in rivers and lakes often are called "fresh water mussels" or "river mussels."

Fresh water clams, like their relatives of the sea, have feet, and can use them for walking. Each clam has one foot. With the shell partly opened, the clam stretches out its foot. The end is pressed on the sand or mud at the bottom, and then muscles work to pull the clam's body toward the end of the foot. That is how a clam walks.

A clam, however, does little walking. With the help of its foot, it makes a shallow hole in the sand, and partly buries itself. Then it lies still, waiting for food. It draws in water, and strains tiny bits of food from it.

For a time, the bits of food rest on the clam's gills. Then they pass into the little animal's mouth.

Yes, a clam has a mouth, or at least an opening which sends the food through a tube to the stomach. It also has intestines and a heart. There are a few nerves in the body, but they are not combined in any place to make what we might call a true brain. To some extent, a clam can feel, but it hasn't much sense of anything else. It is in a clam's world, which in general is a very slow place.

There is one time in a clam's life when it may travel far and wide. After hatching from the egg, a clam larva either dies or finds a resting place on some other animal of the water. It may fasten itself to the fins or gills of a fish, and in that case is carried around. For several weeks it draws its food from the fish. Then it lets go its hold, and falls to the bottom. For a time it has a small shell, but the shell grows in size.

Clams sometimes produce pearls. These have value, but not so much as those made by oysters.

The lining of clam shells is known as "mother-of-pearl," and has proved important in industry. Millions of clams have been gathered to supply pearls of the shells could be used in making pearl buttons.

Bridegroom Says It's Just a Joke

Father-in-Law 'Imprisoned Bride'. Court Summons Charges

Kalamazoo, Mich.—A young bridegroom said Saturday night that his obtaining a court summons charging his father-in-law had "unlawfully imprisoned and detained" his bride was "just a joke."

The newly-married man, Peter N. Leavell, a freshman attending summer school at the University of Michigan, obtained the order at Madison, Wis., against Russell S. Knappen, Tulsa (Okla.) oil company executive.

Knappen and his daughter, Margaret Anne, were reported enroute home to Tulsa from Madison. Leavell said "that will depend" but didn't say upon what—when asked if he would have the action dismissed. Neither would he explain what prompted the "joke."

The youth said he and Miss Knappen were married Wednesday. He came to the home of his mother, Mrs. C. H. Stearns, here and said he would be back in school at Ann Arbor today.

Leavell said he expected his bride to join him in the fall, when she would enter the university as a freshman. The couple met in Tulsa "four or five years ago," he said.

Fireworks Might Fly at Teachers National Parley

Reports Dealing With Touchy Subjects Will Be Presented

San Francisco.—Some 15,000 teachers from all parts of the United States put the needs and technique of their profession under the microscope as the seventy-seventh annual convention of the National Education association opened today.

Indications that fireworks—not out of keeping with this holiday season—would highlight some of the sessions, were seen in reports to be submitted to the teachers before their convention closes Thursday.

There is, for instance, the report of the committee on academic freedom which found that teachers "deal carefully with controversial subjects because of fear of punishment."

And that of the committee on tenure, which, after a year's probing of certain instances, wants authority to investigate all cases of unfair treatment and unjust discharges of teachers, and will seek an appropriation of $10,000 to execute this work.

Most Deal Carefully
The committee on academic freedom, in its report to be submitted to the convention by Chairman Henry Lester Smith, dean of the Indiana university school of education, said few teachers were "dismissed, demoted or otherwise disciplined for exercising academic freedom," but indicated potent forces were at work causing the teachers to "deal carefully" with certain matters.

"The subjects which are most dangerous to teach," the report said, "include religion, sex, politics and economics."

It added that "groups who are believed to be most active in limiting academic freedom are school-board members, parents, school administrators and church groups."

Accused Slayer Shuns Confessed Matricide In Los Angeles Jail

Los Angeles.—A confessed matricide and a man accused of killing his wife and son furnished a study in antagonisms and contrasts today.

Campbell McDonald, 25, who police said readily confessed hammering his mother to death, appeared calm, unconcerned.

Albert Singer, 67, "cant remember what happened" in the home where his wife Frances, 65, and son Harry, 27, were shot to death. Another son, William, 26, was wounded. Singer was nervous, irritable.

They met in jail, McDonald cried. Singer sobbed, without comment. Singer shrank back and cried "I don't want to sit beside that—that murderer."

McDonald explained he killed his mother, Margaret Campbell, a former movie actress, because she threatened to put him in an institution.

Singer said his mind became blank after his son, Harry, called him a name.

Study Effects of 2 Administration Defeats Last Week

Republicans Hopeful of Getting Material for 1940 Campaign

Washington.—(P)—In a holiday calm, congress is surveying the drubbing given money and neutrality legislation out of which Republicans are building new hopes for 1940.

Many politicians, however, have expressed doubt about the sturdiness of this material as campaign issues. Some felt that it might backfire when used to hunt votes. Others argued that from purely a vote-getting standpoint, the farm and relief bills, which President Roosevelt signed into law during last week's hubbub, might prove far stronger than the two questions of major national policy on which he was rebuffed.

Moreover, the money defeat was regarded by many senators as only a temporary one. They believe the legislation which was held back by a filibuster Friday night will be adopted Wednesday. This will set a new silver price, restore the stabilization fund and revive the presidential powers to devalue the dollar.

However sharp may be the debate over the legality of the process by which these powers are restored, there was due to factors over which congress had little direct control. These included such things as mounting reserve funds for old age pensions and the railroad retirement program.

So-called permanent appropriations—such as interest on the national debt—for which congress must provide stimulated amounts annually, amounted to $3,624,812,065 this year.

President Roosevelt criticized some of the increases, notably the $338,000,000 which the senate tacked onto the agriculture department appropriation bill for parity payments to farmers and for disposal of surplus commodities. He held congress should provide taxes to raise the money.

Expansion of the army and navy in the face of troubled world conditions accounted for $1,783,187,847. The appropriation for relief during the fiscal year which started July 1 was $1,755,600,000, in contrast to $2,915,695,000 voted last session. One reason for the decrease was that funds for the public works administration, rural electrification and parity payments to farmers, all of which were included in last year's relief bill, were provided separately this year.

Leonard also will report on arrangements for the lecture tour of Arch Malin, Los Angeles, Calif., who is scheduled to deliver 14 public lectures in Wisconsin and Michigan during August appearing in Appleton the week of August 13.

Edward M. Gerrits, 1322 W. Lawrence street, has been appointed secretary of the Appleton unit to succeed Hugo H. Redlin.

F. J. Leonard Will Talk on Democracy Before Technocrats

Leonard also will report on arrangements for the lecture tour of Arch Malin, Los Angeles, Calif., who is scheduled to deliver 14 public lectures in Wisconsin and Michigan during August appearing in Appleton the week of August 13.

lawyers say that as a practical matter they are not open to a test of legality until invoked.

The operations of the stabilization fund are secret. Outside of a few officials, no one knows when it is being used and when it lies inactive.

Mr. Roosevelt has announced he did not intend to use the dollar devaluation power unless other nations tampered with their own money in such a way as to put the dollar at a disadvantage in foreign markets. Until a man could come into court and prove that he had been damaged by the dollar devaluation power, there should be little hope of testing the legality of the new law.

Republicans and Democrats who voted with them against continuing the monetary powers argued that their efforts were intended to restore to congress its rightful control over the currency.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

Jones, appeared to relish his food. He spoke but once during the meal, to inquire with strange intensity if the fog was as thick tonight as last night.

Nola, excusing herself from the table, walked to the long windows and glanced out of doors. She said, as if thinking aloud, "I wish Bob and Gretchen weren't going to town to that movie tonight. It's bad driving on the highway in this fog."

No one offered comment and she went on through the house to the back door. Mr. Jones announced his intention of walking in the fog and went upstairs for his overcoat. Thorndyke replenished the logs in the drawing-room fireplace, drew up a card table, and suggested three-hand bridge.

Jocelyn could not concentrate on her game. After losing three contracts she gave up, leaving the two men at the chess board. By midnight everyone had gone to his room. The house was dark and quiet. Jocelyn, unable to sleep, lay staring into the blackness which was relieved just a little by fog swirling through the windows. She felt its dampness on her face, in her nostrils, against the roof of her mouth. It depressed her. She was grateful for Sandy who lay sleeping at the foot of the bed, half of his small body across her feet. His alive warmth was comforting.

"Stop it, Sandy!" she scolded. "I never knew you to want to play in the middle of the night. Stop, you crazy pup!"

Hearing her voice, perceiving she was awake, he jumped from the bed and ran to the window, barked with low warning yips. Fearing he would wake someone, Jocelyn slipped to the floor intending to grab him, but he evaded her and began barking loudly and furiously.

Then, through the fog, she heard voices. Unhooking the screen and pushing it outward she leaned over the window sill. It was the cook who was screaming. Shouting...

Wailing Siren
Now through a sudden rift in the gray mist Jocelyn saw flames spouting from the rear of the house where the additional rooms for the servants had been built of wood.

Switching on the bed lamp she took her slacks from the closet and put them on over her pajama trousers. Then she drew a heavy sweater over the top. She slipped her feet into fleece-lined moccasins and sped out the door.

Running around the side of the house she nearly collided with Tally who was attacking a garden hose to the outside water faucet. He, too, had dressed hastily in overall pants and a thin cotton shirt. His hair hung over his forehead; his lips were set tightly.

"How bad is it?" Jocelyn cried. "A couple of rooms at the back. Your servants got out in time. If I can only check it before it spreads any farther... I wish Bob would get home."

"I'll call the fire department in Santa Barbara," she said, turning back to the house. "Shouldn't take them more than ten minutes to get here."

"Good girl."

Rushing outside again she saw Tally, almost in the flames, swishing the hose back and forth. The stream of water seemed a futile weapon against the fiery monster which grew in size with every moment.

"The fire department's on the way!" she shouted at him.

Mrs. Mack, her gray hair hanging in a ridiculous pigtail over one shoulder, kept pleading with Tally to get away from the fire. Geofrey charged around the house with the speed of one of his ponies and started ordering everybody to stand back and not become excited. He was careful, Jocelyn noted, to keep well away from the flames.

"Why don't you find another hose and help Tally?" she demanded of him.

"It won't do any good," he declared. "Might as well wait until the firemen arrive."

"Where is Tally... Nola?"

"Dragging furniture and clothing out of the rooms."

"Then go and stop them," she ordered. "If you had eyes in your head you'd see that Tally will be able to keep the fire from catching the main rooms until the... oh, Geoff, it's spread to the fence... it's burning the garden!"

A second she froze with terror, then tore to the stables, flung open the doors and began throwing a halter on the nearest horse. In a moment the wind might change and drive the fire toward the inflammable hay bales next the stables.

The wailing scream of a siren stopped her. She hurried, panting, toward the helmeted men who sprang from the truck. Tally, his face blackened by smoke, his mouth cracked and parched by heat, directed them. It seemed like a space of mere seconds until the last angry flame had sputtered out under the heavy chemical spray from the fire truck.

Concluded Wednesday.

Howland Spencer Tells About His Scrap With the President

Howland Spencer, better known in Appleton as Harold Sherwood Spencer and the former squire of Krum Elbow estate just across the Hudson river from President Roosevelt's estate, jollying on the yacht Maja just off Daytona Beach, Fla. recently let down his hair and told of various things that led him to sell his estate to Father Divine as a home for the negro's religious colony.

Spencer still was smarting under a search of the Maja several weeks ago by United States customs officials when they seized a few articles from the yacht's captain.

"President Roosevelt thinks I sold the estate to spite him, but he's mistaken," Spencer said. "I sold it because Father Divine is the only man who could develop and maintain it under present economic conditions."

Spencer said his yacht was searched in retaliation for several articles concerning the president which he had published in a small weekly several months ago. He said these frank comments on the president had been made the subject of an article, "Below the Belt," written by the president's secretary, Stephen Early, and published June 10 in the Saturday Evening Post.

Search Petty
"The search of the yacht was extremely petty," Spencer said, "and embarrassing too, for I had as my guest a British commissioner of Harbor Island, where the British king has given me a royal grant at Round Heads at the request of the inhabitants."

Spencer said that friction first started him and President Roosevelt over the name, "Krum Elbow."

"The president's mother came to me and told me her son wanted to call Hyde Park Krum Elbow," Spencer stated. "She said to me, 'You be firm. Don't let him take that name. Just the same it was announced that Hyde Park had been renamed Krum Elbow, but the newspapers were blamed for it.'"

Spencer explained that the president's mother denied the place had been renamed to newspapermen and then President Roosevelt appointed a committee with authority to name or rename any place of historic interest.

Changed Name
"Not long after that," said Spencer with a smile, "I came home and found three big brass plaques on the boat house and sea wall proclaiming my estate Spencer Point. Then I learned similar plaques had been posted at Hyde Park naming it Krum Elbow."

"I have been accused of hitting below the belt by saying the president has no real intelligence. I did say it, to be sure, but I was quoting the president's own aunt, Mrs. Douglas Roosevelt, sister of Theodore Roosevelt."

Asked if his living at British Harbor, Islands indicated he might become a British subject, Spencer declared he had never thought of such a thing. He owns a winter home at Palm Beach.

CLOSE-UP BESIDE MIGHTY NIAGARA. Jolly Captain Robert Graham leans against the rail of his Maid of the Mist to give an inquiring reporter his views on cigarettes: "I've been a Camel smoker for more than 10 years. Lots of times I've compared with other smokers—noticed how much longer my Camels burned. To a steady smoker, that extra smoking mounts up. I figure — on the basis of these recent laboratory reports—that I'm getting the same as 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK. Even without that bonus, Camels still would be my smoke. They're milder, cooler—easy on my throat. They have a rich, mellow taste I've never found in any other cigarette." Try Camels. Enjoy the supreme luxury of Camel's finer, more expensive tobaccos...and the economy of long burning that make Camel "penny for penny your best cigarette buy."

By burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—CAMELS give smokers the equivalent of

5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK

For years millions of smokers have enjoyed the milder, cooler smoking...and the economy...of long-burning Camels. Now impartial laboratory tests measure this added value in Camels through a comparison of 16 of the largest-selling brands:

- 1 CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.
- 2 CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!
- 3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

More puffs per pack—more pleasure per puff—Camels are the quality cigarette every smoker can afford.
